Deraiment Sends Eight To Hospital

BOSTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—At least eight persons were taken to hospital and more than 30 others shaken today when the locomotive of Providence-Boston train overturned at the Back Bay station.

First reports from the New Haven railroad indicated 63 persons had been taken to hospital. A check showed only eight persons were taken to a city hospital.

A railroad spokesman said later the other passengers were not hurt. They were injured seriously enough.

The four coaches were tilted off the tracks after the engine smashed up over the loading platform at the station, five minutes out of end of Boston's major terminal, the South Station.

Firemen worked with acetylene torches to free the engine, identified as John L. Morehead.

A piece of rail fell down and smashed windows in the station, and others from the overturned engine started a blaze on the platform.

Boston City hospital reported six "not very seriously injured" brought in from the crash.

No Formal Inquiry Ordered Selective Price Controls Seen As Buyer-Resistance Stiffens

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(CP)—"Selective re-imposition" of price control to stem the rising cost of living in Canada is "possible," Finance Minister Abbott said yesterday, but the government contemplates no return to the wartime system of over-all control "as there is no justification for it."

Police Arrest Bank Robbers

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Police arrested three suspects and recovered bags of cash yesterday, a few hours after five bank robbers took $130,000 from the mid-city branch of the Bank of America.

The hold-up was an expert job, but police said the robbers made the mistake of talking too loudly when they made their plans in a New Orleans bar.

"We had known last night what we were doing," one of the robbers commented, "we could have lived but not the men at the bank."

A suitcase seized by police when two men were arrested contained $130,000, police estimated, adding that $130,000 was found in a paper bag in the room of another suspect.

The men in custody, charged with armed robbery, were identified as George Bickels, 22, and his 21-year-old brother, Thomas Bickels, 22, and John Hasenbeck, 22.

Greek Rebels May Join Cominform

ATHENS, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The "Provisional" Greek government, government of Gen. Markos Vafides probably will seek to join the Cominform as a means of obtaining unlimited Communist military assistance, reliable sources predicted today.

Source said that the chances of Vafides obtaining recognition for his "government" from Greece's neighbors had been dimmed by the recent Turkish rejection of recognition from Washington and London.

It was believed that Vafides might find quicker assistance through the communists, established among the nine major Communist parties of Europe with headquarters in Yugoslavia as a means of coordinating Communist activities in Europe.

Comparison Made Edmonton Living Costs Are Still the Lowest

OTTAWA, Jan. 10.—(CP)—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics yesterday released cost-of-living indexes for regional cities as at Dec. 1, 1947.

JERUSALEM, Jan. 10.—(AP)—British lancets of the famed "Death or Glory" regiment stood armed guard on the northern frontier of Palestine today across the headwaters of the River Jordan in what appeared to be a move to seal off the Holy Land partition battle from outside Arab attacks.

IF THIS WAS AN indication of British policy, it was the strongest move yet in the mounting civil war that has threatened to become international through the participation of Arab volunteer forces from Egypt, Libya, Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Syria and Lebanon, now training in southern Syria.

Credence was given this supposition through British "strong representations" to the Syrian government over yesterday's borders crossing by 600 Arabs who finally were driven back by the Lancasters and Spitfire planes.

The attack, carried to the village of Dab, appeared to be the possible beginning of a general attack by troops of the veteran Arab revolt forces, headed by King Michael, a member of Arab volunteers in Syria.

ARAB SOURCES scoffed at the attack.

He Runs Romania Fully Modern Studio Being Placed Here

Major link in the chain of broadcasting stations being set up across Canada by the CBC will be established in Edmonton with the opening of a fully modern studio in the Macdonald hotel, it was learned Saturday morning.

The studio will be used to originate programs to be broadcast over the CBC's new 500-watt station at Lacombe. This station is to be known as CKW and will be the "basic" CBC station for the province. It is now under construction and will be completed in June.

It is expected that operations at the new station will commence in July and that it will fill the role as a "basic" station starting Sept. 1. This means that this station will have first choice of programs sent out by the CBC and will, thereby, replace CKW in that respect in northern Alberta.

It had been intended by the CBC to make CKW Watrous, Sask., the major station in Western Canada. It has since been found that it does not "blanket" the area, many receiving sets in Edmonton being unable to receive programs from the station.

EDMONTON WILL BE established to participate in a greater extent in CBC news broadcasts under the "flexible" plan.

Great Sea Rescue Started Removing Passengers From Stricken Vessel

TOKYO, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The Soviet patrol vessel No. 30 began removing 800 passengers from the stricken Russian motorship Divina tonight.

Reports to Japan said the patrol ship, which is similar to a U.S. destroyer escort, had already succeeded in taking off an unspecified number of passengers.

Reports to U.S. naval headquarters by two Japanese ships standing by also said passengers were being removed from the Divina in moderate weather, but a forecast of renewed heavy seas and high winds could hamper the rescue work.

Messages from the Soviet and Japanese ships standing by the stricken vessel said that passengers were being transferred to the Russian vessel in moderate weather, but a forecast of renewed heavy seas and high winds could hamper the rescue work.

Weather reports said the wind was rising again and the waves increasing in the Pacific area where the rescue was being attempted.

The Divina's engines were dead and five feet were being sloshing over the ship. The rescue was hampered by the rough sea and the vessel's position.

Believe Explosives Palestine-Bound

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Seventy-three tons of 1939-ton consignment of explosives loaded at New York City for shipment to Palestine administration were still waiting today for a ship to be chartered to carry them to the Holy Land.

A spokesman for the Arab Higher Committee said the explosives were being shipped to the Holy Land by the WAA clamped an embargo on all freight shipments of explosives in the New York area after New Jersey and New York state officials had refused to issue a permit to ship the explosives to an apparently unlicensed New York firm.

The remaining 73 tons still were counted for.

The investigating Forestry Association, New York, which purchased the explosives, said the firm has what apparently is only a single address in a suite which it shares with three other companies.

Leonard Weisman, who leases the suite and is president of the three firms, was reported "out of town."

Miners Make New Demand for Wages

GLACE HAV, N.S., Jan. 10.—(CP)—A daily wage increase of $1.10 and new working conditions are included in demands submitted to Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation by the United Mine Workers of America (U.M.W.) District 26, Union Chair Freeman Johnson announced last night.

The $1.10 request was not unexpected as the district's representatives had given its executive a mandate to seek that amount.

The 14-point submission was placed Thursday before Harold C. Johnson, president of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, who said he would study the demands.

A contract between the U.M.W. and Dominion Steel and Coal was signed in 1946. Current basic daily rate is $7.34.

The new demands will be considered by the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation's board of directors in a meeting on Jan. 15.

Arabs Boycotting Palestine Group

By LARRY HAUKE

LAKI SUCCESS, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The United Nations Palestine partition commission today faced up to the prevailing problems of when it would enter the turbulent Holy Land and what it should do to ensure its success.

Arabs, to emphasize their opposition to the plan, are boycotting the commission.

Meeting in the wake of new outbreaks of Arab-Jewish violence in Palestine, the five-power group hoped to draft a tentative program for entry into the Holy Land, subject to consultations with Britain on her date of withdrawal.

Present indications are that the commission will leave home this week for the Holy Land in late March. Plans included a stop at London.

The union official said the railroads were not prepared to grant increases in rates of pay because "the railroads had not been granted increased freight and passenger rates since 1918."

He said the railroads had justification behind their application to the Board of Transport Commissioners for increased rates.

The contract official in Edmonton said his firm simply was acting as contractor for the government in construction of the separation plant and indicated that the company should pay for its own work. He had received no remuneration for the work done so far.

"The whole agreement was made to the effect that the company would construct the plant, build government funds for that purpose only and then would have the option of purchasing the plant when it was proved successful," he said. The purchase price to be equal to the amount spent by the government in construction.

"All salaries and wages, invoices for materials and so on, are paid by the provincial marketing board and include no payment for the company itself," he added.

Didn't Try Destroy Religion Hoped His Writings Add to Glory of God

By Rev. G. Stanley Russell

When people who had never read him declared that Darwin had tried to destroy religion and discredit the Scriptures, they probably did not know that he had expressed the hope that his writings would add to the glory of God. Still less did they remember that the writers of Genesis had set forth in "days" the gradual development of creation.

With what one "day" ended the next "day" assuredly began, so that the contention which under the evolution only enhances the splendor, as well as the duration of the time which ended in the arrival of man. Nobody who says "every dog has his day" thinks of that period as a satellite measured 24 hours, so it is no shock to find that a "day" consisted, in all probability, of millions of years.

Nothing within reach of our homes would better repay a visit than the paleontological department of the Royal Ontario Museum, on the walls of which are pictures, as excellent as they are enlightening, of the gradual development of existence, and it is somewhat surprising to read "This happened about 500,000 years ago" and to see the Moscow conference or the present and quite recent pictures of the British Isles against the gigantic and comforting background.

WHAT IS EVEN more remarkable, however, is the fact that the Bible has to tell of mental and moral evolution, which is still going on. Man's early history of God was of a super-human Person, not unlike the pictures of the gods of the ancient world, but of concern for the tribe which he belonged to as much as the members of it considered the tribe's applauded murders, and even inspired assassinations. The Bible gathers some of our religious ancestors.

Will Officiate

At Christ Church

At the Sunday morning service of Christ Church, a memorial tablet will be unveiled in memory of Rev. Hutton Cautley.

Mr. Cautley served as people's warden at Christ Church from 1917 to 1948.

For the same period he was a member of the diocesan synod and provincial and general synods of the church.

He was associated in many ways with work of the church in the diocese and throughout the Dominion.

The Right Rev. W. F. Barfoot will officiate at the service.

It is not merely some sort of heaven, but a life of survival-quality, the "putting on of immortality," as Paul phrases it. That immortality is something acquired, and as something inherent, is declared in so many words by the Apostle of the Gentiles. For far too long we have ignored this aspect of things and have been content to live at all, we have argued with the poet that God is "a good Fellow, and all will be for the best in the end."

We are, however, dealing with a life in which laws not only exist but are in a manner the divine government is as obvious and established as the laws of nature.

This simply means that our grandfathers were much more in sight of the facts than we thought they were, and that they gave us the impression that they were choosing merely between heaven and hell, but they had the right kind of vision of the eternal life.

They knew "original sin," which is the original pull-back of our animal nature, which is, in fact, the sin of our origin.

THEY KNEW the two roads which one leads to the dead-end and the other to new and greater heights. They knew also that Jesus was not "just a teacher" who was "warmed (Continued on Page 7)

TODAY'S MESSAGE

Keeping Good Resolutions

Just about this time, New Year resolutions may have been broken or good intentions begun to weaken. It was easy enough to resolve to break bad habits or plan new and finer patterns of moral living. But the test has come with the waning of enthusiasm and the constant prompting of old urges.

One of the chief reasons good resolutions are so quickly abandoned is that many people make many more resolutions at one time. Another is that some fail to understand that the most important part of a good resolution is planning how to keep it.

The most salutary resolutions are, of course, those which affect our spiritual or moral life. The average person realizes he has a tendency not to many forms of sin, but to one, perhaps two. If he is wise, he will resolve not so much to acquire a new virtue as to eradicate his old one. An excessive drinker, for example, knows that it is much more beneficial to curtail his drinking than to decide he will go to the gymnasium or give more generously to the poor. The conquering of a single vice in itself very often leads not merely to acquiring an opposite virtue but to many other virtues as well.

Resolutions should be made with a clear knowledge that many hours, days, even weeks, of trial lie ahead. Temptations to discouragement and despair are inevitable, especially if the fault to be corrected has become deeply engrained. In all such cases, men must seek a strength outside themselves. Constant prayer and quiet and earnest meditation are sometimes the only means by which weak human nature can triumph.

Each individual knows the particular resolutions he or she should make. But there is one resolution which will almost without exception should seek to carry out to add a little more to the happiness of those with whom we come in daily contact. No resolutions will bring surer or greater rewards, for every kind word or work of the church in the diocese and throughout the Dominion.

The Right Rev. W. F. Barfoot will officiate at the service.

It is not merely some sort of heaven, but a life of survival-quality, the "putting on of immortality," as Paul phrases it. That immortality is something acquired, and as something inherent, is declared in so many words by the Apostle of the Gentiles. He Trisects an Angle

Charles O. Johnston, Chicago mechanical engineer, demonstrates how he trisected an angle in Chicago recently in a little over a minute, using a ruler and a draftsman's compass. However, mathematicians at the University of Chicago said he didn't follow all the rules laid down by the ancient Greek geometrician Euclid—who said it couldn't be done.

DOROTHY DIX says:

Girl Should Ignore Nuptial Advisers

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very very much in love with a man whom I see the perfect husband. He is not good-looking and I am. Also, he is ten years older than I am. He loves me very much and we plan to get married, but neighbors and relatives tell me that he is not the man for me on account of the difference in our ages.

This makes him very unhappy for he says he loves me so much he doesn't want to run my life. What would you say to me?

ANSWER: The first thing I should advise you to do is to ignore the awful warnings that the butterflies are pouring into your ears. You are the ones who are contemplating marriage, not your sisters nor your cousins nor your aunts, and if you love each other, it is nobody else's business.

The success of a marriage depends entirely upon the taste of the individual. A man might have every virtue in the world, but if there was nothing in him that appealed to you and if you did not enjoy being together, your marriage would be an utter failure.

Also, the reason why friends and relatives and neighbors have no right to try to pick out for you a husband and wife for us is because different natures click in different ways. The man who might be a girl's dream husband would be another one's nightmare, and the woman who might be the ideal wife for one man might drive another man to drink. So, my dear, if you and your man are the one who will make it, let them.

At for the ten years difference between you and your fiance, don't give it another thought. It is in the hands of fate. You are getting a man who knows what he wants in a wife and is ready to give you his heart. Also, you are getting a tramp card. It is always to the wife's advantage to be better looked than her husband. If he keeps off the flirtatious woman and makes the man think he is some player.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have just been married. Will you please tell me where I can go to learn how to cook and get recipes. I know how to cook a little, now to make pies, or fry chicken, or hot noodles. My mother would never let me cook, and in high school all they ever taught us was how to make souffles.

ANSWER: You are a wise girl who began your married life by learning how to cook, for there is no more important thing in a husband's life than to be able to feed him. There are many ways in which a wife keeps a clean hearth and a good table. The other woman that every wife has to be afraid of is the one that looks the simplest and the most beautiful, but it is the woman who is a good cook.

There is no mystery about learning how to cook. Any woman who can read who has energy and industry can get a good cook book and learn how to cook in a dozen easy lessons. There are many good cook books on the market. Buy one that looks the simplest and that contains the recipes for the kind of food that you are accustomed to eat. That is your husband's life, and go to it.

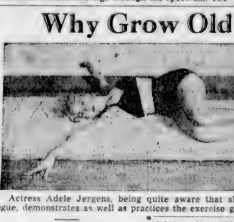

DEAR MISS DIX: A widower and I are in love with each other and are thinking of getting married. I have two children and he has two children and there is every likelihood that we might have other children. Do you think we could be happy with three children in the house? Would it cause friction between us?

ANSWER: Nothing short of a miracle would enable three, or even two, different sets of children to live together in peace and harmony. You must be sure of an adventurous nature. I advise other couples to try it. I once heard a bad-guy woman tell me that she had three children and she was beating up her children.

This is the last call for Marathon until January 18. In case you have forgotten, this week, I am offering my Night-Week Self-Improvement Marathon at this time.

If you have faith in beauty you will try to correct, why not join Marathon and see how much you can improve yourself in eight weeks' time? This week I have been giving some exercises which I mean winners and pupils in my classes have found to be effective. Today's exercise is my own favorite. It is especially valuable because it is a good waist, hip and abdominal exercise.

Therefore, this one exercise takes care of several usual figure faults. Lie on your back with your legs straight and your arms resting on the floor, straight out from the shoulders, palms on the floor. As you roll over onto your left side bend both knees up close to your abdomen. As you roll back onto your back, straighten your legs. Roll onto your right side and bend both knees up close to your abdomen. As you roll onto your left side, bend both knees up close to your abdomen.

Continue. Do NOT bend your knees until you roll onto the sides. This is a continuous smooth movement with no pause between knee bending and straightening. Keep your fingertips on the floor so that you get a t-t-t at the waist. Those of you who are joining the Marathon should measure yourselves before beginning. Then weigh and measure at the week's end, and again at the end of the second week. It is discouraging to weigh every day and you will probably not begin losing in pounds until you have died a few days.

At one point in reducing, if you are exercising on a bicycle, use a small chain in weight even though you are losing in inches. Do not let the chain become too loose. Keep it tight.

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred
Every parent wants her children to be polite and make a good impression on others. She would be surprised to know how easily they are concerned first of all with her own opinion and would let the child's behavior follow her own.

Children love to do what they are ordered to do. They love their seat for this if the parent makes what they do a disagreeable matter. Every parent knows how the child balks when she says, "Now we must thank Mr. Jones for the nice book she brought you." Maybe she will and maybe she won't, but mother stands there with a bright but piercing eye that means business.

Instead she would have better success if she said, "Oh thank you, Mrs. Jones, isn't this a lovely book, darling?" and then would let the child express her appreciation in her own unadvised way.

Children imitate the mannerly attitudes of those with whom they are. They are more than they are. Eventually the child is saying the things he has heard said and in the same voice and with the same gestures.

If mother always says, "Good morning," when the children appear, and there is a practice of saying goodnight when they go off to bed there is no reason at all why these commonplace courtesies should disappear when there is company around. They wouldn't if they didn't. They are the conventional and usual ways in which the child acts.

If they hear their parents remark that Mrs. Bumps must have been better than she comes, if they are parents being gracious and considerate of grandparents or visitors, why would they act differently?

It is the compulsion to act in ways which are unusual when company is present which gives the child stage fright and makes it necessary for the mother to prompt him in his lines.

Children will learn to be friendly, courteous and mannerly when that is the way they are treated. Let parents act all of the time.

In drawing a cat with the aid of two coins, a nickel is used for the head, a silver piece for the body. Then details are filled in.

All that is left to do is to turn the box over and the cat will be the borrowed quarter, for which we must again exchange it, gaining opportunity to do so by once more inviting the spectators to examine the box.

A CAT DRAWN WITH AID OF TWO COINS
The two little pictures shown here prove how simple it is to make an amusing drawing of a cat with the aid of two coins. We need a quarter and a silver piece. First put the nickel on a piece of paper and draw around it. Then put the silver piece to the right of this circle, overlapping it slightly. Then the pencil around the edge of the circle, so that it is just outside the first circle. Now draw in the ears, eyes, nose, mouth and tail. With a few more strokes, we complete the cat.

Let's start with a card fortune. Shuffle the deck and have him cut it twice. Lay the cards out in a row. Locate Jim's name card - it's the King of Spades for a dark man - and pick up every third card in the row.

Now come to the second fortune. Lay a glass of water on a table. Put down several coins, and shake the box again, this time from side to side. In which direction can you have no room to move, "the good" or "the bad"? The answer is always allow you to look into it. See the paper side of the coin. They take this to be the bottom of the box.

We close the book, saying "Come! Again we shake it, this time up and down. The coin is

THE SKATERS

FOR several days the Teenie Weenie men had been making skates. They hammered the tiny runners out of odd pieces of safety pins, scraps of tin or any other metal that was handy. The little workmen beat out the blades on the half-inch bolt nut which they used for an anvil in the old coffee can that served them for a workshop. When the runners had been hammered into shape, they were fastened to wooden soles and then tiny straps of strong frog leather were attached to bind the skates to Teenie Weenie feet.

Most of the Teenie Weenies loved to skate. The Old Soldier with a wooden leg couldn't skate, and this Winter the Turk, who is a fine skater, had to give up the sport due to an accident which injured his foot. In fact, none of the little people had done much skating, for the weather had been warm and the ice on the creek was not strong enough to make skating safe even for a Teenie Weenie. The Duncie and Gogo put on their skates once and tried to skate in an old saucer that had a bit of ice in it, but that wasn't very satisfactory, for there isn't room in a saucer to do much skating.

One night it turned bitter cold, and the next morning when the Old Soldier went into the kitchen to light the fire for the Cook, right beside the stove he found a thimble of water frozen solid. While breakfast was being cooked, the Duncie ran down to the creek. There he found the ice frozen as smooth as glass. When he reported his discovery to the rest of the little folk, they all decided to go skating.

The TEENIE WEEENIES

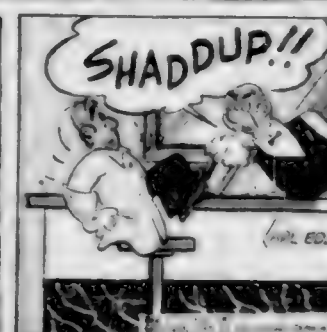

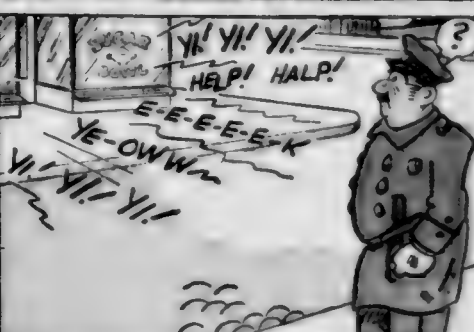

BY W.M. DONAHUE

After a big breakfast of fried frog ham, corn meal mush and doughnuts the little people wrapped up warmly and hurried to the creek. The Policeman soon built a fire and the Cook set on a pot of sassafras tea to steep. The little people put on their tiny skates and began gliding over the smooth ice. The Sailor had brought one of the Teenie Weenie babies along in a tiny sled that had been made by mounting an empty peanut shell on runners. He skated over the ice pulling the sled after him to the great delight of the baby, who was wrapped up in several layers of warm spider's web blankets.

Every now and then Teenie Weenie fingers and toes would get cold and then the little folk would hover over the fire the Policeman kept burning. They drank a lot of tea, too, and in that way they managed to keep from freezing. But by noon every last Teenie Weenie was ready to return to the shoe house for a hot lunch and a comfortable place near the Teenie Weenie fireplace.
